First Through Fourth To Meet "Bridges"

There's a buzz of pleased anticipation at the library because next week is National Book Week, which in Carmel means kids' week at the library. Not that every week isn't kids' week at the library, but only once a year do they get out of school in groups to go to the library and have Mrs. Paulette Heisinger tell them stories and show them the new books.

And if you think that isn't an event that makes its impression on young minds, you should see the "book" Miss Marjorie McCausland's First Grade made as an expression of their appreciation of the jaunt to the library last year—illustrated, with crayon pictures of Mrs. Heisinger in a brown suit and with a nice, round orange-color face.

Kindergarten through the Fourth Grade will have the pleasure of a during-school-time visit to the library in groups next week. Fifth through Seventh had their trips to the library two weeks ago when they were introduced to the mysteries of working the card catalogue as a prologue to the days in high school when they will have to look up things in reference books.

The theme for this year's book week is one to lift the spirit of child and adult alike—"Books Are Bridges" to the realm of the imagination; to the countries around the world; to the world of nature; to an understanding of people—oh, any number of wonderful things—you can think up a list of them yourself.

A New Generation Takes Over Carmel's Armistice Day

Armistice Day 1946 in Carmel will belong to youth. The community will celebrate the end of the first World War by attending the Carmel High School-Pacific Grove football game on the Carmel high school athletic field.

The Carmel American Legion color guard will present the national emblem and the American Legion colors before the start of the game at 2 o'clock, to the accompaniment of music by the Pacific Grove High School band, and taps will be played. At the third quarter of the game, the color guard will withdraw.

Consistent with the youth idea, the color guard is made up entirely of World War II veterans: Frank Hay, Wofford Duffer, Stanley Clay and Speirs Ruskell.

Commander Charles M. Childers asked at the Legion meeting last Monday night that all Legionnaires who are able to do so will meet in a body before the game, in front of the bleachers at the 50-yard line.

Mrs. Grace Howden has accepted the chairmanship of a provisional committee to establish a regional symphony association with headquarters in Carmel, it was announced yesterday.

The committee will assist development of an adult symphony made up of the best musicians in the three Peninsula towns, of Salinas and Watsonville, and of any other communities of the county that wish to participate; and a youth symphony composed of the outstanding music students of the grade schools of the peninsula and neighboring towns.

The orchestras are to be sponsored jointly by the school districts represented and by the Carmel Music Foundation. The latter will hold a reception at the high school music room November 24 to interest and organize support among local music lovers.

The co-operation of the schools and music instructors of the county was enlisted at a meeting called here last week by Leon Minear, Carmel High School vice-principal. Minear will direct the adult symphony, which will rehearse in Carmel.

Mrs. Howden was a charter member of the Oakland Symphony before coming to Carmel in 1939. She has continued her interest in music here as president of the Carmel Musical Arts Club for two years, a member of the Carmel Music Society, Peninsula Community Concert Association, and of the Bach Festival Chorus. Her home is frequently the locale for receptions for artists after their concerts in Carmel, and a gathering place for music lovers. Her interest in the young people of the community has led to her donation of her swimming pool to the summer recreational program and organizing an annual Christmas concert of high school music students at the Church of the Wayfarer.

Council Groans At Over-Loaded Nov. Agenda

If City Clerk Peter Mawdsley can figure out how to add nothing to nothing the city council members will get a well deserved raise in pay, which they pointed out they had coming to them Wednesday night at the regular council meeting when they contemplated all the overtime work they had lined up for them this month.

On the agenda at the present moment is a committee meeting of the council with the property owners in the area of the street improvement project, meeting to take place Wednesday night, 8 o'clock, November 13. The following week, on Tuesday, November 19, there is to be an adjourned council meeting at 8 o'clock when the council will take on the Dolores street merchants and their friends and supporters for another, and it is greatly-to-be-hoped final, round on whether or not the Dolores Street Squeeze shall be given a treatment of one-way traffic in the hope of effecting a cure. At the present moment the council stands, 2 for the merchants and one-way traffic; 2 against; and 1 mayor caught in the middle.

Also on the agenda for the adjourned meeting on the 19th will be a public hearing on Fred Bechdolt's request for permission to gerrymander a lot on his property because he wants to switch his writing house around in another direction.

Then there will be further consideration of the new empowering act for the planning commission, which had a first overhauling Wednesday night when council, city attorney, city clerk, city building in-

GETTING AROUND THE PENINSULA

By ROSALIND SHARPE

Up the Carmel Valley, the autumn leaves are flaming bright as fire, or yellow as butter in some cases; the fields are full of pumpkins, and the hills are hazy with the amber sunlight of an extended autumn. Frost killed fuchsias and other flowers last week, but otherwise one would have no suspicion of the approach of winter.

Except for the numerous restaurants and other commercial ventures concentrated in a nuclear, mushroom group near the Los Laureles grade intersection, nobody would have any reason to imagine that this autumn was very different from the autumns that have gone before it in the fertile valley of the Rio Carmelo where the Indians used to pound acorns and shelter from the storms of the coast. One wonders what those Indians would think now were they suddenly to be catapulted into this century and see the neon lights, the sub-division signs, the stores, restaurants and even a real estate office which give one the feeling that the Carmel Valley is about to become a city, or at least a collection of small towns.

Valley residents who wish to preserve the pastoral loveliness of these cultivated acres from the march of civilization have quite a battle ahead of them in the months to come.

The rumor has been going around up there lately, by the way, that the road which the county plans to construct as soon as materials are available will go clear through to King City. Surveyors have been moseying around, they say. If the Carmel Valley is to become a main thoroughfare from Highway 101, valley residents feel that the question of zoning is even more important than they had formerly imagined, if they are to keep it from becoming dotted with service stations, night spots and such.

News that all peninsula bars are going to be surveyed in the next few weeks for the purpose of enforcing the meals-with-liquor law caused great surprise in some quarters, and local bar owners are going to have to do a lot of hustling to conform with the rules before the agents get down here. Harris To Meet Wrothy Parents On Questionnaire

Superintendent Leo Harris has called a meeting for Wednesday night, November 13, at 7:30, in the high school library to give parents an opportunity to express their objections to a recent questionnaire circulated among the high school students as part of the testing program, and also to explain his purpose in circulating the questionnaire.

A number of parents have taken exception to the personal nature of the questions which they gather from the students' reports deal with the youths' background, home life, religion, and their own marital relations. To date they have not seen a copy of the questionnaire and they want to. They have expressed the opinion that if the questions are such as the students have reported, they concern matters that are "nobody's business" and constitute an unwarranted intrusion into their private affairs. They have stated that such questions are upsetting emotionally to young people who may have adjusted to and accepted conditions in the home that they may find disturbing once they are questioned about them by "outsiders." They have also pointed out that the youngster's loyalty to his family makes it difficult to answer truthfully questions that put his home in an uncomplimentary light, witness the report that some of the students "horsed up the questionnaire with goofy answers, and some refused to answer at all."

One parent, expressing the opinion that a "typical Carmel row" is brewing over the questionnaire, asked that the meeting be arranged with Harris so that an understanding can be reached.

Harris stated that he welcomes an opportunity of discussing with parents the testing and counselling program, and he will be glad to have suggestions from them.

Not only parents with objections to voice in regard to the questionnaire, but all parents or citizens interested in the work of the school are welcome to come to the meeting.

Red Eagle Plans Wild West Show For November 16

Chief Red Eagle, who's been seen around the streets of Carmel lately in full Indian regalia, has organized a Wild West Show to be held at 8 o'clock in the evening on November 16 at the Sunset School Ball Grounds. For the benefit of the Community Chest Fund and the newly organized Carmel Boys' Club, students of both Carmel High and Sunset will participate.

Chief Red Eagle has been busy making Indian costumes for everyone, and Allen Knight and Frank Heffling have helped plan and engineer the pageant.

Tickets—$1.00 for adults and 50 cents for the kids—will be on sale at the Carmel Grocery and the various drug stores.

SCULPTOR TURNS WRITER

Joseph Goethe, New York sculptor who has recently decided to settle down on the Peninsula, is having a book privately printed called "Woods of the World."

HARRIS EXPRESSES APPRECIATION

Superintendent Leo Harris, on behalf of the faculty of the Carmel schools, issued a statement yesterday thanking the people for their generous support of proposition No. 3, which sets teachers' pay at a minimum of $2,400 a year. He said he believed the passage of the measure would help in relieving the teacher shortage.

In the Carmel school system, though the minimum pay was $1,900, only five teachers will be affected by the new law. Increase in the total pay roll, which is borne by the state, will be $1,400.

No school next Monday, Armistice Day, in Carmel.

And on top of that, there's to be a whole week's vacation at the end of the month, November 25 through 29. The first two days are for teachers' institute in Salinas, and the rest is in honor of Thanksgiving, November 28.

Sporting NOTES

P. G. PADRES IN ARMISTICE DAY GAME

With both teams smarting from defeats by league opponents last week, football rivalry will be at high pitch when the Breakers and Padres take the field for their Armistice Day clash. Both teams will be in peak of condition for the grid natural which always provides plenty of thrills for the spectators. Pacific Grove is completing a hard luck season, which has left them hanging on the ropes in most of their games, while the Padres have had an in-and-out season with four wins and two defeats. Regardless of past performances, the keen rivalry between these two schools always brings out the best in both teams, and this year should be no exception.

The Pacific Grove band will perform before the game and during the half. Armistice Day ceremonies, sponsored by the Carmel American Legion, will precede the game. Pre-game festivities will begin at 1:30 and the kickoff will be at 2 o'clock sharp.

CCAL GRID NOTES

In the B division of the CCAL, King City took over undisputed possession of first place by thoroughly shellacking the Carmel Padres last Saturday. The Mustangs showed why they ran roughshod over Pacific Grove and Monterey, and appear to be a cinch to repeat their championship performance of last year. Gonzales took the measure of Pacific Grove, 6 to 0, last Saturday night at Pacific Grove, and have a chance to tie King City if they can upset them Armistice Day.

In the A division, a pigskin natural is in the offing when Salinas and Monterey meet on November 15. Both teams are undefeated in league play and they are so evenly matched the game may be regarded as a toss-up. Monterey has the more rugged line of the two, while Salinas has a slight edge in the backfield.

MUSTANGS TRAMPLE PADRES

Showing definite superiority in the passing department, the King City eleven found a sleepy Carmel pass defense easy to pitch over and proceeded to take full advantage of this glaring weakness. King City had been heralded as a team with a powerful ground attack which shunned use of the overhead method of gaining yards. However, after the first quarter they found how easy it was to score with passes that they scuttled their running game and pitched for three TDs.

Carmel kicked off to open the game and the Mustangs took the ball on their 40 yard line when Pitman's kick went out of bounds. On the first play King City quick-kicked and Warner returned the ball to the Carmel 30 yard stripe. From this point the Padres put on their best offensive show of the afternoon. Byers and McCreery picked up a first down in two tries. Warner then passed to Bell for another first down on the King City 35. McCreery hit off tackle for 10 and another first down on the Mustang 25. At this point one of Warner's flips misfired and King City intercepted and carried back to their own 40. Thrown for a loss on their first running play King

City again quick-kicked and Warner returned to his own 30. Carmel failed to gain in two plays and quick-kicked back to the King City 45. The Mustangs moved to the Carmel 40 and then the air raid hit. Frazier, Mustang halfback, faded back and pitched a beauty to Merkle, right end, who had gone deep. Merkle caught on the 10 and stepped over for the score. The attempted drop kick was blocked by Byers and King City was in front 6 to 0.

Carmel threatened again in the first half when they recovered a fumbled punt on the King City 25, but three pass attempts went incomplete and the Mustangs punted out of danger. The half ended with King City in possession on their 35 yard stripe.

The Mustangs received to open the second half and had another score without relinquishing the ball. Another pass from Frazier to Merkle set the stage for the second score. Moxley bucked over for the extra point and the scoreboard read King City 13, Carmel 0.

Two well executed passes tallied the third Mustang score and Mazoni, a hard running left halfback, scored the fourth on an off-tackle cutback.

The Mustangs had a vicious blocking, hard-charging ball club and deserved to win. The Carmel line turned in a good performance and stopped the tough off tackle drives during most of the game. Dewar, Goodrich, and Greenan were especially prominent on defense and with another year ahead of them will be mighty hard to stop next season. In defeat Carmel uncovered a good football player, Bob Barry, who has been overlooked in previous games. Bob did everything a good halfback should do and made about 75 percent of the tackles during the second half.

In a preliminary game the King City reserves downed the Carmel reserves 13 to 6, in a see-saw battle. Carmel scored first when Dan Holmes sliced off the Mustang left guard for eight yards and the score. Dick Gargiulo had set up the score by a 35 yard end run on the previous play.

King City came back for two scores in the second half, and, although the Padres threatened several times they lacked the necessary punch to hit pay dirt. Bracisco, Calder and Timmins played good ball in the Padre line, while Gargiulo and Holmes sparked backfield.

Starting lineups follow:

Limiteds: Monahan, le; Bracisco, lt; Calder, lg; Timmins, c; Richey, rg; Adams, rt; Lafleur, re; Brown, qb; Gargiulo, lb; Weer, rh; Holmes, fb.

LEGION BASEBALLERS READY

After their work out Tuesday night on Sunset field under the lights, Maestro Del Monte (Andrew) announces with ill concealed satisfaction that his Carmel American Legion baseball team is in the pink and will whip the pants off the Stolte outfit they are scheduled to play Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Monterey Ball Park.

Del Monte also announces his team membership (taken almost bodily from the championship Carmel Pine Cone Softball team of this summer): Jimmy Hall, pitcher; Kelly Taylor, centerfielder and coach; Bill Askew, catcher; Jack Giles, first base and coach; J. Huffman, thirdbase and coach; Jimmy Kelsey, secondbase; Bud Butts, firstbase; Judd Stull, rightfield; Byron Pryor, firstbase; Bill Yonkers, fielder; Gordy Miyamoto, shortstop and pitcher; Ky Miyamoto, secondbase and pitcher, Vic Marconi, leftfield; Chuck Cheshire, secondbase and shortstop; Bill Nay, fielder.

SUNSET LOSES TO BAY VIEW

Sunset School lost a very close game to Bay View Thursday at the Monterey Ball park by a score of 7-0. Bay View's touchdown was scored when one of their players fell on a fumble at the kickoff starting the second half.

Players for Sunset were as follows: Walt Shaw, le; Skipper Lloyd, lt; Jerry Lindsay, lg; Arleigh Jones, c; Paul Rickettson, rg; Joe Campbell, rt; Keith Harris, re; Mick Ricketts, qb; Henry Overin, lb; John DeAmaral, rh; Stewart Emery, fb. Subs: John Molteni, Gordon Rickettson, Kurt von Meier.—Gilbert Neill, grade 7.

BACK WITH BIG BAGS

Carmel hunters can't be bothered with game shortages in their own baliwick. They have taken off in every direction and are returning with the bacon. Ed Cochrane was back in town Tuesday after two weeks at Tulle Lake with Bobby, and they brought back limits of both ducks and geese, along with the cheering report that there are still plenty more up there for anybody who wants to travel to the northern border of the state for good shooting.

Donald Dawson came out of Nevada Tuesday with a buck with the "next to the biggest antler spread of any buck ever taken out of the state," 35½ inches, four points on each side. In his party were Kenneth Roberts, with a sizable buck sporting five points on one side, six on the other. Harold Aldrich, Bud Wilder and Trueman Scarlet, the rest of the Nevada contingent, also got their buck each.

Duck hunting is good in Gustine region as Fred Godwin, Frey Mylar, Waldo Hicks, Gene Ricketts, Dan Landon (of San Francisco) and Earl Wermuth can testify. They came back with limits earlier in the season.

Reports are that Del Norte and Siskiyou counties have an abundant supply of bear, all in good condition. If any Carmel sportsmen go after bear, and get one, The Pine Cone would certainly like a picture, so take a camera along.

RAY! BECH!

Fred Bechdolt's Tough Tackle Demons from the Carmel Parochial school won a 6-0 victory over Sacred Heart Saturday by a brilliant sleeper play when the sleeper, who had been trotting out to the side lines to take a nap on every play for so long that everybody forgot him, received a pass and ran to a touchdown! Which goes to show what happens when the imagination of a writer is turned to the strategy of football coaching.

On Bech's all star team are Jere Cummings, rt; Johnny Fortier, lb; John Gottfried, lt; John Hicks, rg; Lanny Doolittle, fb; Donald Canhan, o; Ted Brand, le; Bobby Updike, qb; Sam Robinson, re; Eugene McFarlan, sub; Ronnie Doolittle, lg, and Ronald Stoney, rh.

Coach George Mosolf, who guides the destiny of the Carmel High School football squad, finds time somehow in his so-called leisure time, to assist Bech and the kids.

Robinson Jeffers' Tower Beyond Tragedy was given its premiere at the Little Theatre of the University of California, November 8 and 9, 1932.

Girl Scouts— Brownies— Going Strong

On Wednesday, November 6, when the Big Tree Regional Conference opened at Asilomar with delegates from California, Nevada, Utah, Arizona and the Pacific Islands, five members of Mrs. Ben Updike's Girl Scout Troop were placed in charge of the Color Guard Drill. These five were Carol Templeton, Marilyn Moffatt, Ruth Ann Moffatt, Suzanne Smith and Katherine Seitle. Dr. Rosalind Cassidy was chairman of the opening International evening at Merrill Hall, and she gave a talk on Girl Scouting in Other Countries. Many Girl Scouts from various parts of the Monterey Peninsula participated in the folk dancing and singing which followed her address.

Last evening at 8:00 Dr. Anna Rose Hawkes, dean of students at Mills College, spoke to the assembled delegates and her theme was, Girls Are the Same Everywhere. This morning at eleven o'clock there will be another address, this one by Dr. Charlotte D. Elmott, who is the school's welfare co-ordinator for Santa Barbara and well known as a clinical psychologist. Members of the Girl Scout National Staff who have been attending the conference are Miss Agnes Leahy, Mrs. Margaret de-Westfelt, Miss Ruth Schroeder and Miss Margaret Murray.

The Intermediate Scouts, Troop 10, have charge of the Color Retreat today at noon, when the conference will close. Brownie Troop No. 2 will also assist at the closing session.

The Pine Cone appeal for volunteer leaders for the new Brownie troop being formed netted the handsome result of two leaders and several women who offered to place their names on the substitute list. Mrs. Lloyd Miller, who is also troop organizer in Carmel, decided to extend her usefulness to include this new troop, and Mrs. Evelyn Rodgers also signed up for a share of the responsibility and pleasure. It has been decided that this new troop will meet on Thursdays at 3:45 in the Girl Scout House, and the members already elected are: Helaine Daggy, Sondra Sowell, Phyllis Burnett, Robin Palmer, Erin Black, Priscilla Clark and Patsy Ricketts. Several other girls have since placed their names on the waiting list and will probably be initiated next week. Any girls who have not yet signified their willingness to join but who wish to do so should get in touch with Mrs. Lloyd Miller at the earliest possible moment.

There is still room for two or three volunteer workers among the grownups, so please Obey That Impulse.

Last Sunday afternoon a group of older girls who have enjoyed Girl Scout activities in the past met to discuss the formation of a Girls club. Under the leadership of Miss Shirley Shively and Miss Lee Waggener they plan to meet twice a month on Thursday evenings in the Girl Scout House. To initiate the movement they held a picnic on Sunday at Point Lobos and it was an extremely lively affair, something which the girls who attended will never be able to forget. They are interested in having new members to this club and all those who like gay times out of doors are invited to get in touch with the leaders during the next week. A full list of the membership will appear in The Pine Cone as soon as the organization is complete.

Mrs. Norman T. Reynolds left yesterday for San Francisco where she will meet her daughter Betty and her new husband, Dr. Sidney J. Cohen who will arrive on a transport from Korea, today.

And while the library is wooing the youngsters at school, it might be an appropriate time for the adult population to find means of expressing its appreciation to the library staff for the sincere effort they make to satisfy the varied wishes of a difficult community.

You and I—all of us, drag out arm loads of books week after week—new books, old books—in every imaginable field—and if the library doesn't have the exact book we want, we demand that the librarian get it for us, and she does: either by asking the book committee to approve its purchase, if she thinks it is a book that more than one person will find worthwhile and interesting, or by borrowing it from the county or state library, if she believes that the interest in it is too limited.

All of this involves a lot of trouble, but is cheerfully undertaken and deserves a thank you all through the year as well as during book week.—Wilma Cook.

Needed, An Expert On Eccentricity In Divining Rods

A group of inventors who have succeeded in constructing a steel divining rod are at a loss to explain its eccentric behavior. According to William Bishop, spokesman for the inventors, it begins to move when it is held over a vein of water, and will count out the number of feet one must penetrate in order to find the water. "If, for instance, it waves 78-80 times," Bishop said, "it's that many feet deep in the earth."

But there's one strange phenomenon which has them baffled. It seems that if the person holding the steel divining rod closes his eyes, the thing won't work. Several times they have experimented with people who knew nothing about the rod, and it has worked when their eyes were open and then, upon being asked to close their eyes, it has failed to work.

They are unable to come to any satisfactory conclusion about this matter, and are hoping that someone in Carmel will be able to work with them or explain it to them, by contacting William Bishop, box 674.

Mr. Bishop, former owner of Bishop's restaurant on Seventh and San Carlos, is well known and liked in the community; his integrity is unquestioned, and if he says the inventors are sincerely puzzled and want help and information, such is the case.

TIED!

On Tuesday and Thursday afternoons the sixth and seventh grade girls can play supervised games. We are now playing kickball.

Thursday afternoon the "Atomic Bombs" and the "Junior Padres" were playing a practice kickball game. In the fourth inning it was a 13-13 tie. We decided to play one more inning, but at the end of that time it was another tie, this time 15-15. So we played one more inning which broke the tie, the score being 18-20 in favor of the "Junior Padres." The Junior Padres hope to continue to be that lucky during the tournament games.

Peter Sahlsten was four years old October 29, and it seemed a good idea to celebrate the birthday and Hallowe'en all at once, so all the children of the Blue Jay Nursery School were his guests on that day. The children were all presented with favors of little pumpkin men on sticks and big cookies with chocolate faces. All the Sahlsten family hovered around and with them were Mrs. Douglas H. CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

"If by one man's offence death reigned by one; much more they which receive abundance of grace and of the gift of righteousness shall reign in life by one, Jesus Christ" (Romans 5:17.) This is the Golden Text for the Christian Science Lesson-Sermon for Sunday, November 10. The subject is "Adam and Fallen Man."

Included in the sermon are these citations:

Luke 13: 11, 12. "And behold, there was a woman which had a spirit of infirmity eighteen years, and was bowed together, and could in no wise lift up herself. And when Jesus saw her, he called her to him, and said unto her, Woman, thou art loosed from thine infirmity."

"Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mark Baker Eddy. "When Christ changes a belief of sin, or of sickness into a better belief, then belief melts into spiritual understanding, and sin, disease, and death disappear" (p. 442.)

Audubon Society Holds New Member Meeting Tonight

The Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society held their November field trip last Sunday, meeting at the Carmel River mouth and, after identifying the birds found there, adjourning to the Pebble Beach Golf Links to study the shore birds seen over Stillwater Cove.

The evening meeting for the month of November will be held tonight at 7:30 at the Sunset School Library, Carmel. At this meeting prospective members are especially invited to attend, in order to become acquainted with other bird-lovers as well as with the policy of the Society for the coming year. Hilary Helsley, program chairman, will speak on Bird Study Adventures with Boy Scouts, and will introduce five of the members who will give five-minute talks on the various birds of prey. Florence Morrow will discuss the barn owl, Peter Morse the golden eagle, Glenn Clairmonte the white-tailed kite, Letitia Hall the red-tailed hawk. Sadie Govier has prepared a talk on the habits of the sparrow hawk, and since she is not able to attend, it will be read by one of the officers.

As a participating member of the National Audubon Society, the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society interests itself not only in birds but in all nature study. One of the allied projects being conducted this year is the marine life course given by Ferdinand Ruth, President of the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society, at Pacific Grove High School Monday evenings. Any people seriously interested in this are entitled to attend. The Society will announce other projects in related fields as they are begun. This is the time of year for the admission of new members, and the Friday evening meeting at Sunset School is expected to be indicative of the public interest in this direction.

Griffin, After Many Wanderings Opens Voice Studio Here

Thomas "Jimmy" Griffin, who has had an astounding career for one so young, including both solo and chorus work under such leading conductors as Barbirolli, Toscanini, Stokowski, etc., is another young veteran who "fell" for Carmel, and when he was released from the service last May he decided to settle down here. Since his arrival he has worked with the Carmel Music Foundation, and has been teaching voice at Douglas School, where he is currently engaged in starting a girls' chorus, and preparing them for Thanksgiving and Christmas programs. Now he is opening a voice class in Carmel.

A 1941 graduate of the Westminster Choir College at Princeton, New Jersey, where he received the degree of Bachelor of Music, he sang two years as soloist with the world-famous Westminster Choir, and it was he who first introduced the famous Ballad for Americans, by Earl Robinson, which made such a big hit in 1941 when Paul Robeson sang it on the Pursuit of Happiness program. Like Robeson, "Jimmy" sings baritone. He has sung in every major city of the United States with the choir during their coast-to-coast tour, and they stopped off for two weeks in Los Angeles to do the choral music for Fantasia with Walt Disney and Leopold Stokowski.

Griffin sang St. Matthew's Passion under Stokowski's direction in New York, Philadelphia, Washington and Baltimore; the Beethoven Ninth Symphony with Toscanini, and has sung under Barbirolli, Bruno Walter, Rachmaninoff, Eugene Ormandy and Jose Iturbi both in solo and chorus. He also sang the leading role in the original American opera by Ernst Bacon "A Tree on the Plains." Performed at Converse College, Spartanburg, South Carolina in 1942, the opening was attended by New York critics and was broadcast over the Blue network.

He also taught voice in Philadelphia, Spartanburg, South Carolina and at Roanoke, Virginia. "Voice study is important not only for singing," Griffin believes, "but in connection with so many things. Particularly the speaking voice. And even in relation to everyday life—such things as self-confidence and relaxation."

During the war, "Jimmy" was in the Signal Corps, and did a lot of administrative work as assistant executive officer of the Philadelphia Signal Depot, which was the largest Signal Corps depot in the world during the war. He was also public relations officer, and handled all publicity and speech-making for the depot.

"In my spare time," he added, "I organized a large chorus in Philadelphia which sang at all the USO's, the Stage-Door Canteen, and the various Army and Navy hospitals. The chorus was composed entirely of war workers, who faithfully donated their time after working hours." The chorus sang the Philadelphia Christmas program for two years on the local radio station, WFIL, which was also broadcast over the American Broadcasting Company network, and was so well liked that they were asked to sing the Easter program as well.

After leaving Philadelphia, Griffin went to the Philippines in August, 1945, which he reports as "a very nice place. The people were just beginning to get over the feeling of occupation. But they wanted the Americans out. They wanted to get the country all to themselves. Not knowing very much about the political set-up there, however, it was hard to tell which political faction was plugging for it."

LEAVES FOR GERMANY

Mrs. L. M. de Riemer of Scenic and Martin Way left Carmel on Wednesday for New York. She expects to get a boat for Germany about the twentieth and will join her husband, Lt. Colonel de Riemer, whose station is to be changed so she knows only that her address will be Germany.

Diana C. Farr

Mrs. Diana C. Farr, the mother of John Farr, an instructor at the Carmel High School, died of a heart attack following a chest operation at the Oakland Hospital on Sunday, November 3. She was 71-years of age.

She came to California 34 years ago with her husband, the Reverend F. C. Farr, from Iowa, and they made their home in Salinas where he was pastor of the Presbyterian Church until his retirement 11 years ago. Subsequently they have lived at Monte Toyon, near Aptos.

In addition to her husband, Rev. F. C. Farr, she leaves four sons, Dr. Walter Farr of Salinas, Willard Farr of the Salinas High School faculty, Reverend Kenneth Farr of South Dakota, and John Farr of Carmel High School; and a daughter, Mrs. Lois Read of Santa Cruz.

Funeral services were held Wednesday, November 6, at White's Mortuary in Santa Cruz.

Someone nearly burned down Robinson 'Jeffers' tower in July, 1932, by tossing a lighted cigarette into the shrubbery. Jeffers, who was working at the time, did not notice the blaze until aroused by the cries of neighbors. Volunteers and neighbors led by Jeffers in the bucket brigade put it out.

What made Greyhound Grow?

...giving the people
good transportation...at low cost
...and lots of it!

From puppyhood, Greyhound grew on one good idea: to build a new, "American-style" travel system for THE PEOPLE.

Not mail...not freight...but PEOPLE.

The thing Greyhound knows best is how to get people to the places they want to go...at the times they want to go...at prices they can afford.

And Greyhound does this for more cities, towns, villages and corners than any other transportation system in the West.

What's more, Greyhound makes this "American-style" travel friendly, easy, convenient...stopping in the heart of big cities...at the drug store across from the city hall...or at Pete Jones' ranch, if that's where Pete wants to get off.

Why do the people like Greyhound? There's your answer: good transportation...at low cost...and lots of it.

Korea Riddled With Disease, Otherwise OK Says Colonel Rigdon

At any rate, there is very little house work in Korea, as there are no beds to make, very little to cook, and the houses are constructed simply, with thatched roofs, usually built in an L shape, and the floors are heated by pipes running underneath them from the fire.

The sanitary conditions in the city of Seoul left much to be wished for, however, chiefly because—Col. Rigdon added surprisingly—"the Japs were impractical in many ways." The sewage system is inadequate due to the fact that the pipes are too small. The hospital water system was well laid out, but the pressure was too low. As a result of this, the houses on the hill could get no water at all, except during the hours between 11 p. m. and 6 in the morning. The city of Seoul has an electric plant (for which the power comes from the Russian zone of occupation), which is housed in a fine building, but it has poor switches and connections.

"The Japs do things the hard way," he commented, "but the railroad system was surprisingly well laid out. Very few steep grades. It has a double track. And although some of the cars are narrow gauge, most are broad gauge, like the American. However . . . the railroads and street cars have no lights, and come zooming out of the night. People are killed all the time."

Another deleterious effect of Japanese occupation was the fact that the Japanese did not train any Koreans to take important posts in government. There was a small educated minority, most of whom had attended Japanese universities, but none of them had had the opportunity of obtaining any practical experience. This has made the job of American Military Government doubly hard. It has set up bureaus and departments like those in the states, with Korean understudies for each job working under the supervision of an American, but it may take more time for them to be ready to replace the Americans than would otherwise have been the case.

"The Koreans were very glad to see the Japs out," Col. Rigdon said, "but they want us out and Russia out too."

Prior to being stationed in Korea, Colonel Rigdon, who left Fort Ord three years ago to go overseas, was stationed at Milne Bay, on the eastern tip of New Guinea in 1944, where he was base surgeon and had 5,000 staged medical troops and 750 nurses under his command. This was a large staging area called the 2nd Medical Concentration Center. From there he went to Biak Island in the Netherlands East Indies in March of 1945, to take command of the Ninth General Hospital, which was one of the three general hospitals in the area. There was a large supply base and airfield at Biak, and Col. Rigdon had a hospital of 1,500 beds which usually had to make room for 2,500 patients at a time who were casualties from the Philippines. Shortly after V-J day, he took command of the 49th General Hospital at Manila. He left for Korea on Christmas day, 1945, after a false start December 21, when the plane got as far as Okinawa and had to turn back because of the weather. With only 20 minutes gasoline supply left, they found the only airbase within 200 miles, on the northwest tip of Luzon, when a rift in the clouds miraculously appeared. At any rate, on Christmas Day they got to Korea safely.

When questioned as to Army medicine, Col. Rigdon said, "Medicine is much farther ahead than in the first World War. The lower mortality rate on battle wounds was due to the early treatment of shock with plasma on the battlefield soon after the injury. The lower infection rate, of course, is due to sulfa and penicillin treatment." In regard to dysenteries, he said that prevention was the important factor.

Colonel Rigdon came back from

Agnes Haagenonson

Mrs. Agnes H. Haagenonson, better known as Pat Condon, who had lived for many years in Carmel, died Thursday, October 31, in San Jose after a long illness. She was the wife of Milton A. Haagenonson of Carmel.

She was the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert L. Hogg of Saratoga, and leaves two sisters, Mrs. Orrin Oden and Mrs. Thomas W. Stafford.

Funeral services were held Monday, November 4, in San Jose, followed by a requiem mass at the Sacred Heart Church in Saratoga. Rosary was recited at the funeral parlors on Sunday evening, November 3.

Korea with some highly superior loot, purchased in the Army post exchanges where it was released for sale to army personnel. Mostly stuff left in Japanese houses when the Japs were forced to evacuate, Col. Rigdon's trophies included some extremely rare and beautiful Japanese kakimonos and scrolls, one of which particularly seemed a choice example of early Japanese art depicting an ancient samurai (warrior) wearing armor, holding a sword, and bearing in his hand a symbolic branch of blossoms. Another was a landscape with misty waves and rocks and the rising sun above it—so exceptionally fine in execution and concept as to make one think of Chinese books on the philosophy of painting. Other objects included bolts of pure silk, delicate rice bowls, inlaid glass ash trays, women's pantaloons and smocks (the Korean national costume is white), saki flasks, Chinese celery and olive dishes, Korean vases, hand-carved ivory boxes, carvings both Korean, Japanese and Chinese, and of the latter the most interesting example was a Chinese figure of the Greek god Bacchus, carved in wood. Obviously old, the wood was worm-eaten. Colonel Rigdon's four children are having a fine time going through these things down at their house on Lincoln and Twelfth, and Mrs. Rigdon, who has been prominent in the PTA and other organizations during the war, is delighted, needless to add, with the silk.

Colonel Rigdon will be here for 60 days leave altogether, before going on to his next post, and somehow one gathers the impression that he is rather glad to be home again, even though Korea was fascinating.—Rosalind Sharpe.

Curly says he's glad election is over so he can get Jack Armstrong on the radio.

Who Gets Off Easiest—Men or Women?

Maybe you saw that poll on who has the easiest life—men or women? Of course, the men voted that the women did, and the women vice versa.

It would be the same in our town—take any family. Thad Phibbs envies his Missus spending the day at home, with no hot office to attend to. And Sue envies Thad his luncheons with the boys; and his evening glass of beer with friends (while she cleans up the dishes in the kitchen).

Of course, none of it goes very deep. Thad knows way deep down that the Missus has plenty of work running a house; and Sue knows Thad's friendly glass of beer is well-deserved relaxation after a long hard day's work.

From where I sit, most husbands and wives may grumble now and then—but they know in their hearts it's a case of live and let live, give and take, that comes out pretty even in the end.

Benjamin Keith

Benjamin Keith, the father of Alice Keith who has been the organist at All Saints' Episcopal Church in Carmel for many years, died Saturday, October 26, in San Luis Obispo as a result of injuries suffered earlier in the week when he was struck down by an automobile.

A resident of Monterey for fifteen years, he was a piano tuner by profession and had been associated with many of the world's foremost artists. He started his career in 1898 when he entered the employ of Steinway and Sons in New York, which association he continued until 1931. From 1905 until 1920 he travelled all over the world with such concert pianists as Fanny Bloomfield-Zeisler, Olga Samaroff, Josef Hofmann, Rudolph Ganz, Sergei Rachmaninoff, Josef Lhevinne, Paderewski, and the violinist, Fritz Kreisler. But after 1920 he confined his musical activities to the Pacific coast, where he has rendered invaluable professional service to pianists all over California, as well as on the Monterey Peninsula.

A native of Cairo, New York, he grew up in Vineland, New Jersey, where his family moved shortly after his birth, and after touring the world with the foremost musical artists, he moved to San Luis Obispo in 1920, and then to Monterey in 1931. He was 74 years of age at the time of his death.

He leaves his wife, Edith Lee Keith; three daughters, Mrs. Howard Neubauer of Pacific Grove, Miss Margaret Keith and Miss Alice Keith, both of Monterey; and a son, Palen Wells Keith of Bremerton, Washington. He also leaves three sisters, Miss Minnie W. Keith, Mrs. Joanna Cheeseman, and Mrs. Florence Bolles of Vineland, New Jersey.

Funeral services were held at St. John's Chapel, Del Monte, on Tuesday, October 29, with the Rev. Theodore Bell of St. John's and the Rev. Norman H. Snow of Santa Cruz officiating. Cremation at Salinas followed the ceremony and the ashes were inurned at the Santa Cruz Mausoleum.

Robert S. Getz, E. M. Seifert, W. M. O'Donnell, Edwin Hilby Sr., Charles Simpson and E. A. H. Watson were the pallbearers.

A wild west picnic was held in Cooke's Cove under the direction of Jack Dalton, cowboy author and one time Texas ranger, on the night of Wednesday, November 16, 1932. To the accompaniment of guitar, banjo and fiddle, songs of the range were sung around the blazing bonfire. The barbecue was attended by all the cowboys and girls from the surrounding countryside, along with a number of townspeople.

Have You Read . . . ?

BY EDWARD O. Sisson

George R. Stewart: Man: An Autobiography. N. Y. Random House. 310 pp. $2.75.

This must be a good book: the jacket says it is "a thoroughly readable and lively novel"; Mr. Joseph Jackson, whom I respect very much, gives it almost a page with much praise and practically no unfavorable criticism. Finally, the Non-Fiction Book Club chose it for their December selection. So why not read it? Surely so many competent judges can't be far wrong. Mr. Jackson does suspect that "a whole lot of people will be profoundly irritated by Stewart's book"; I'll confirm his statement for one—I was irritated, amused, entertained, and perhaps slightly instructed. But still rather definitely irritated.

It would help if it were really what the jacket calls it, a novel. But I read it all carefully before reading the jacket, and never did it occur to me that it was a novel. Besides, if it really is a novel what is the Non-Fiction Club doing with it? It does contain many novel ideas: one of the most novel is the idea of Man, meaning in some sense the Human Race, writing his own autobiography. So it is not fiction, or at least does not give itself out as fiction. No, it is biography, if the word is defined very broadly. Not autobiography, even though the writer is himself a man—"uh" man, as the second grade teacher used to tell her pupils. For an autobiography is told from the inside, a wonderfully preferred position; and nobody can speak for the Race of Man, for Man in general, from the inside.

Now a biography of Man must be first natural science, taking in biology, geology, paleontology, archeology; then it must be anthropology, that curious cross between science and the humanities; then history, meaning all of the recorded experience of the race. The author clearly recognizes this. He does cut the biological section pretty short by passing over all that marvellous part of the history of Man from microorganism up to mammal and starting late in the day with what he calls "Primitive Mammal", hardly a recognizable zoological species. Still he plows through the long ages of pre-history and then plunges into history "proper", and marches down to the contemporary scene today. One must stand in awe at the boldness of the enterprise. Nobody can know enough to master such a task; he would have to be a dozen experts all rolled up into one. And the author is not officially any of these special experts, but is a professor of literature.

This is the unhappy thing about the book, and the thing that does irritate. Two marked flaws result from this absence of technical qualifications in the author: first, he offers too many easy solutions; he actually begins by assuring us that the whole theme is simple—"my life", he says, that is, of course Man's life—"has followed simple lines, and (thus far) is as plain as an old-fashioned novel." (P. 5) As I type this out on the white paper I can hardly believe my eyes. Man's life in "simple lines"? Where then in the known universe can anything complex be found? For everything else known to our minds is in hard fact simpler than Man and his way of life; Man, made up of body and mind, or in newer terms, being "body-mind", with his way of life, is precisely the most complex, subtle, elaborate, astounding thing in the created world. This is a very unpromising start on a vast problem.

That cooking is woman's part in the life of man is fancifully explained—"She, being weaker in jaw as well as in her other muscles, may first have grasped the utility of making fire do part of the work." (P. 39) The author himself has to add, "At least, this is a pretty fancy." Again, concerning the origin of homo sapiens or man proper, we read: "The simplest explanation would be that he lived in some region under conditions which favored the development of his brain." Isn't this a beautiful case of putting words in perfect grammatical order but to no good effect? His brain did, in fact, develop; so, it must have been . . . and so on. The explanation just

And slept in the City of Sleep;

And wept with the pity of sleep;
For there were the Sons and Daughters of Dawn Rejecting the Morning Star.*

Spilling over the tall spray

Cool my hot throat, my wounds.*

When they emerge, night clings to their lids
And their bodies are a portion of night—
Their thoughts clamor with black,
Their brains are vaults of broken stone.*

—BY ORIAN DEPLEDGE

explains nothing.

The other flaw is that since the author is not a competent expert in the subject-matter, we cannot repose full confidence in his statements of fact, and still less in his opinions. When we are told "The shift from the village to the city brought no enrichment of personality", a view worked out at some length, we have no good ground for taking this extreme doctrine as being supported by the actual history of mankind. Still less, we agree when we find a chapter headed "All about Rome", consisting of less than two pages, — less, the author admits than he has devoted to the domestication of sheep. (Pp. 237-8) Here too we find the usual "simple" answers: "In the natural course of things, the villagers fell under the control of a king, and in some way there arose a split between the upper-class patri-cians and the lower-class plebeians." (P 236).

Perhaps the most startling novel idea offered is that the stretch of time from 2000 B.C. to 1000 A.D., is set down as "three thousand dull years", (P. 243) in which "not very much of importance happened." (P. 237) No wonder Rome rates less than two pages, and Greece is dismissed almost as contemptuously. Yet the author himself notes that during this period appear "Zoroaster, Gautama, Asoka, Homer, Socrates, Virgil, Marcus Aurelius, Alfred, and many others whose names still burn like scattered lights along a dark road." (P. 202) Elsewhere he mentions in a similar apologetic vein, Rameses II, Alexander the Great, Julius Caesar; (P. 237). He also concedes, a little reluctantly, that "Thus the Greek citizens were able to develop art, athletics and philosophy." (P. 211) Manifestly he might have added that Christianity was born and lived its first thousand years within this period in which not very much of importance happened.

It is instructive to contrast this book written by one man without technical competence, so far as the evidence indicates, with another book on Man, called "Science and Man", published four years ago; in which twenty-five writers, every one an authority in his field, contribute to provide sound information concerning human nature. These writers never suspect that their problem is simple, or that the life of Man has followed simple lines; on the contrary they are keenly aware that they are grappling with the most complex and difficult subject in the range of human knowledge. I was tempted to say that this book by competent writers is harder reading than Mr. Stewart's book, and lament over this fact; but it is not quite true, for if the reader really thinks about Mr. Stewart's book he is going to find it hard, not perhaps to read, but hard to accept. The book itself is too simple, it too much "follows simple lines" and its ease of reading is deceptive and illusory.

The fact is that the author has undertaken the impossible. Not that it would be impossible for an intelligent man to compile and organize a compendium of fact and sound information on the subject of Man, but that this author undertakes to give too many answers,—such as I have been noting in the preceding paragraphs. In all the twenty-five essays by experts in the other book I do not find any such extreme assertions as are too abundant in Stewart's discussion. Is it possible that Mr. Stewart has permitted himself a sort of "poetic" or fictional licence when he is really bound by strict fact and logic? Perhaps this is why the jacket calls the book a novel, and why Mr. Jackson suspects the book will irritate some people.

And now after all I have said and without retracting any of it, I still recommend the book. First because its central aim is true and important,—to look at Man, at ourselves, as a whole, as One Race or stock, one species all bound up together; second, because the method of the book is correct even though not properly carried out,—to look at the facts and ask their meaning. Never before has it been so necessary to consider Man in toto, since we now have "One World" so far as space and time go, and must achieve

Big, Beautiful And Noisy—Legion Gives The Kids A Party

On All Hallow's Eve the Carmel American Legion Post No. 512 was host to approximately 175 young people, ranging in age from two to twenty. As each entered the hall he was given a mask, a toy gun or a noise maker and asked to leave his name in a hat for the door prize drawing. The hall was in full Hallowe'en costume, and many of the youngsters came in costume. Legionnaire Everil H. Kludt had charge of the games and contests. In this she was ably aided by Legionnaires Stanley Clay and Jess Duval. There were sixteen prizes for winners of the contests.

Commander Childers and Mrs. Childers were much in evidence, and the commander handed out the eight door prizes, headed by grand prizes of a baseball mitt for the boy and a tennis racquet for the girl.

S. Andersen, Ernie Hill, Mrs. Earl Jukes, Marie Schnuch, Haskell Warren, Henry Croteau and several other Legionnaires who dropped by during the evening, helped in various details, especially the refreshments, which consisted of ice cream, coca-cola, doughnuts and cookies, which had been ordered by Entertainment Chairman Edgar Leslie.

When the door prizes had been given out, the younger children went home and the older ones (aged 14 to 20) took over the hall for dancing to the juke box; and Everil H. Kludt, who had come dressed as a gypsy, told fortunes.

Commander Childers was heard to murmur (while holding his head) that he had never known so noisy an evening, not even when the Dolores street merchants petitioned the city council for one-way traffic.

Limited Number May Enroll In Psychology Class

John H. Westover, principal of the Carmel Adult School, reports that the Wednesday afternoon class in the literature of applied psychology has room for two or three new members. So far 14 women have registered for this class and are carrying the discussions forward, making a study of the modern psychology as it appears in recent publications. Mrs. Glenn Clairmonte leads the discussion following each informal address by a student. The books reported upon are selected by the students themselves, each offering the class the result of her own discoveries, and within the few weeks since this class was started there has been a decided advance in the general understanding of the group.

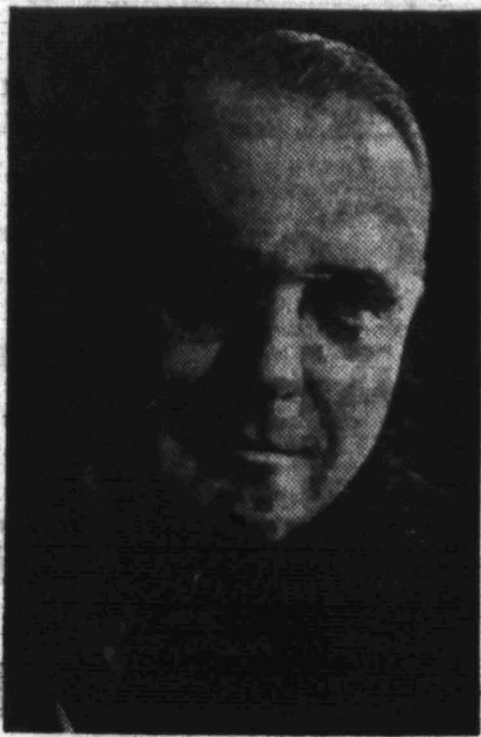

They meet at 2:30 every Wednesday afternoon, in room 15 of Sunset School, and close each session at four o'clock. Talks scheduled for several weeks in advance include those by Mrs. Louis B. Sawyer, Mrs. Elizabeth Graves, Mrs. Wanda LaFleur and Miss Joan Reinke.

British Help India, Speaker Tells Church Women

Mrs. James Lawson, born in India of missionary parents and herself a missionary in that country for thirty-five years of her adult life, speaking to the Monterey Peninsula Council of Church Women last Friday afternoon at the quarterly meeting at Hays Chapel in Seaside said that much has been said about Britain's responsibility for India's backwardness, the British have done much of benefit to the people, with good roads and railroads for transportation, large irrigation projects that have enabled production of two crops annually instead of one, as formerly, and also a great extension of agriculture to hitherto arid regions. With all the modern conveniences of civilization brought by the English, the country is still at a very backward stage, with the great majority of the people living in dire poverty. This is in part due to their religious ideas and the caste system, which all but prohibit any attempt to rise above the state in which the individual is born.

The great hope for the people lies in the spiritual freedom and new outlook brought by the missionaries, supplemented by medical services, educational and vocational training which bring better living conditions and opportunity for development, she said. Throwing

Public Invited To Attend Reading Of Westward Star

The Carmel Adult School cordially invites the Carmel public to attend a reading of that outstanding poetic novel about the pioneers as they trekked across the country to California—The Westward Star, by Frank Ernest Hill. This reading will be conducted by Mrs. Glenn Clairmonte in room 11 of Sunset School, on Tuesday evening, November 12, at 7:30.

Two weeks ago Mrs. Clairmonte gave a similar reading of Christopher LaFarge's poetic novel, Each to the Other, and it turned out to be such a successful entertainment that the above program has been prepared to satisfy again the same need among Carmel poetry lovers. John H. Westover, principal of the Carmel Adult School, requests suggestions from members of the community as to the literature they wish to have discussed at future Tuesday evenings.

Iranian Student Will Speak at P. T. A.

Feruz Kazen Zadeh, an Iranian student of history and international law at Stanford University, will be the featured speaker at the November meeting of the Carmel Parent Teachers' Association, which will be held in the cafeteria of Sunset School at 3:00 p. m. Tuesday afternoon, November 12. The subject of Mr. Zadeh's discussion will be Youth Looks at the Chaotic World of Today. During his years at Stanford first as an undergraduate and later as a graduate student, he has been a leader in youth movements in San Francisco and the Bay region. Mrs. Ruth Goddard Bixler will be in charge of the program.

In addition to Mr. Zadeh's speech, a group of Sunset School students will present a radio program which they recently gave over KDON with great success.

One World of humanity if we are to escape destruction and get on with our destiny. The supreme question for the human mind is, as old Kant perceived, What is Man? Connor-Neilsen Wedding Jane A. Connor and George K. Neilsen exchanged vows in a double ring ceremony at the Church of the Wayfarer on Tuesday evening, November 5, in the presence of friends and relatives, with Dr. James E. Crowther officiating. Bob Jansen sang Ave Maria, a special request of the bride, before she came up the aisle on the arm of her uncle, Frank Sargent of Palo Alto, who gave her away.

The bride wore a simple, exquisitely tailored suit of a pale misty blue, almost the color of a moonlit dusk, with a spray of tiny white orchids pinned to the lapel, and a modish brown hat glittering with a band of gold sequins.

Maynard Krebs of East Monterey, brother-in-law of the groom, acted as best man.

Following the ceremony, guests streamed out of the church and headed for the Pine Inn, where a big reception was held, complete with flowing punch bowls and an enormous four-tiered wedding cake surrounded by clusters of pink and white bougainvillea, and a charming spray of white bougainvillea on top.

Mrs. Harold P. Connor, the bride's mother, of Fernside Farm, Henniker, New Hampshire, who had come west for the wedding, stood in the reception line with the newly wedded pair to receive the greetings and congratulations of the many assembled guests. She wore a suit of deep orchid with a Kolinsky fur and a Vogue-style, parachute hat with a tigre-colored orchid pinned to her suit. Also in the reception line was Lynda Sargent, the bride's aunt, who had come down from Jamesburg for the occasion, and she looked utterly ravishing in a black suit with a black hat which was a swirl of black feathers, decorated in back with shimmering gold leaves. An immense white orchid decorated her shoulder like some exotic bird.

Mrs. Frank Sargent, also a hostess at the reception, wore a checked suit and a hat with an enormous brown ostrich plume.

Among those present were members of the nursing staff at the Peninsula Community Hospital, where Jane has been nursing since her arrival in California this spring, as well as numerous friends and relatives of the groom. Lillian Bos Ross was one of those who came up from the Big Sur for the ceremony.

After their honeymoon, the young couple plan to live for a time in an apartment they found near Del Monte, but later on, they will probably move to Utah, where George Neilsen's family has a sheep ranch.

Costume Party At Club

Hallowe'en was celebrated at the Monterey Peninsula Country Club Saturday night with a gay and colorful costume ball and buffet supper. More than a hundred members and guests were present and it was voted one of the most successful parties ever given. There was a wide assortment of prizes and the winners were allowed to make their own choice in the order of the award. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Peat got the blue ribbon prize for their costumes as Raggedy Ann and her Raggedy brother. Ralph Castagna with bottle, bonnet, and long white baby dress came in second. Mr. and Mrs. Muri Ogden won third place, Mrs. Ogden in a Japanese costume and Muri, a swagging pirate. Ray Ramsey wore a business suit bought at Holman's in 1916 and surely looked out of this world. Mrs. H. P. Stewart's Spanish beauty was fittingly accented by a lovely Spanish costume. Colonel A. G. Winston wore a Chinese costume sent to him by his son who is now in China, and Mrs. Winston was gotten up in the fashion of 1910. Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Claypool represented a Spanish Don and his Dona, as did Dr. and Mrs. G. Ridgley Parker. A dash of Scotch was supplied by Peter McLean in his kilts. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Daugherty went Spanish and the Lawson Littles represented college golfers. Mr. L. L. Dewar's two hundred avoirdupois was tucked into knee pants and Mrs. L. L. Dewar was charming in a Danish costume. It's impossible to count up to a hundred as the paper is going to press.

There's a new experience in store for you in LIAL'S MUSIC SHOP on Ocean and Monte Verde if you haven't heard Burl Ives singing the Blue Tail Fly. This Appalachian ballad is one of Ives' most famous and it's included in the album called The Wayfaring Stranger, with the Foggy, Foggy Dew and others of Burl Ives' songs. The Ink Spots have an album at LIAL'S, also, containing songs that have been popular so long they threaten to take on folk-song character. Artie Shaw's album is on the shelves and his versions of Frenesi and Begin the Beguine set the soberest foot to tapping.

It's a fortunate woman who has for husband a man absorbed in photography, because there's never any worry about gifts for a man and his camera. There's an endless list of accessories for camera addicts. If you're wise and thoughtful, select a Christmas gift from THE BEAUX ARTS PHOTOGRAPHY SHOP on Lincoln and Ocean. Whether it's a lens cover or an enlarger, you'll find complete equipment for taking, developing and printing pictures at THE BEAUX ARTS. Just for a start, look at the projectors, light meters, tripods, albums, gadget bags, contact printers, developing tanks and all enlarging accessories.

The inexpensive but impressive gift is not a thing of the past when you can buy beautiful ear rings and pins at MERLE'S TREASURE CHEST on Lincoln and Ocean for only half price. MERLE'S sale is still on and the sale table is laden with beautiful sequin ear rings, tiny golden acorns for your ears, bangles pearls and butterflies. There's a little of everything on sale, from the beautiful Napier sterling silver jewelry to handsome leather and gold compacts and even a piece of early American china which looks surprisingly like Belleek.

There's an air of luxurious necessity about make-up traveling kits, and the Primrose House kits in FORTIER'S on Ocean and Dolores are luxurious in their neat fittings and generous amounts of all basic make-up preparations and very practical, with their waterproof satiny linings and sturdy alligator-like coverings. There's a large compartment in the kits for tooth brushes and other overnight necessities, and a large mirror in which to see how delightfully the PRIMROSE HOUSE preparations become your complexion. The make-up kits close up securely to make an attractive hand bag in either brown, red or blue.

Whether you want the classic jewelry items such as gold beads and pearls or something unusual and exciting JOYCE'S on Ocean Avenue seems to have practically everything in the way of pins, rings, bracelets and ear rings. The ear rings at JOYCE'S look interesting, in classic designs of fleur de lis, crowns and roses and in zoological specimens of pelicans, deer, fish and salamanders. Look for the golden bee with a large pearl for his body, and the fine carved ivory pins.

If you have one or more children you should visit MORLEY BAER'S small gallery on Sixth near Dolores to see the beautiful books he makes of photographs of children. He'll photograph your children in the midst of all the beauty of Carmel's beaches and trees and rocks and make an idyllic group of pictures, bound with a plastic back and a lucite cover. Such a picture book will present your children as they are, running and playing, and will be a perfect gift for grandparents—or for any parent who wants to remember children's days in Carmel.

For a special accent for National Book Week THE VILLAGE BOOK SHOP on Ocean near Dolores has received a large shipment of Beatrix Potter's inimitable books. Every child should have her "Peter Rabbit"—not just any Peter Rabbit—but the true, the bluish, Potter "Peter Rabbit." There are a dozen or more other books by the same hand, as nice as Peter himself, and don't forget "Jemima Puddle Duck," who was an unorthodox mother and wanted to sit on her eggs herself, although she wasn't a very good sitter. At THE VILLAGE BOOK SHOP you will find books for children of all ages, and may we suggest a look into the Golden Dictionary, which will amuse anyone for days?

In SPENCER'S HOUSE OF CARDS on Ocean Avenue you'll find some really unusual and attractive Christmas cards in a bright water color technique printed on excellent paper. The designs, whether a merry family around a dinner table, a sprig of mistletoe or a small train bringing Christmas visitors, are excellent and the cards are not overburdened with either sentiment or ornamentation. It takes from ten days to two weeks to have your cards printed with your name so go to SPENCER'S now for your cards.

You'll see glistening new brass lamps in FRISBIE'S FURNITURE STORE on Dolores near Eighth. These lamps are very graceful and decorative with their bright lacquered surfaces which will not tarnish and their slender standards. Crystal globes combine with brass in some for added brilliance. There are some nice little modernistic lamps too, with square blocks of walnut or maple bound in brass. FRISBIE'S Hurricane lamps are attractive, too, and quite inexpensive.

THE CARMEL BOOKSELLERS want everyone to share in their delight at completion of the new bookstore. THE BOOKSELLERS have come out of their backyard shed and moved into the elegant new store with its handsome copper faced eaves, and this weekend will hold open house to which YOU are invited. Saturday and Sunday from three to five in the afternoon you will be most cordially welcomed at the receptions, and any day thereafter you'll find the BOOKSELLERS in their shop, where may be purchased new, used, rare books and books on specialized subjects. The shop, on Mission north of Fifth, will also be open every Friday night until nine-thirty, beginning next week.

The Webster automatic record players in BAYARD'S RADIO SERVICE on Sixth near Dolores should be just your dish if you're looking for a record player. These table models plug into your radio very simply and then play your records through the radio, taking full advantage of its tone and volume. The little machine can accommodate ten twelve-inch records and changes them automatically. The supply is somewhat limited so if you want one before Christmas now is the time to buy one. RADIO SERVICE BY BAYARD also offers efficient and prompt service and repair on all radios and phonographs. Look in the window of BAYARD'S for the Presentation sets of glass coffee makers, which come on a mirrored tray with creamer and sugar, and a coffee bottle to hold an extra supply of coffee.

Beautiful imported English woolen makes its appearance in a smart three quarter length coat in THE COLLEGIATE DRESS SHOP on Alvarado street in Monterey. This coat is most becoming with its wide shoulders, accented with diagonal lines rising from the waist, its loose deeply cuffed sleeves, its belted waist and its slightly flaired skirt. It's smooth and smart looking with a casual air and the details of its making are fine—heavy satin or crepe linings, for instance. This coat—an Oscar Cahn creation—comes in a beautiful bright scarlet, vivid kelly green, soft aqua or warm beige. Look for it in THE COLLEGIATE DRESS SHOP in Monterey.

For immediate delivery of such desirable things as stoves, water heaters, home freezers and even barbecue pits visit the McDONALD REFRIGERATION COMPANY on Fremont Avenue in Monterey. Waiting for some fortunate housewife are several Western Holly Gas Ranges, with either griddle top or built-in incinerator with gas kindler. These stoves do everything but read the cookbook for you. Fifty gallon electric water heaters are in stock at McDONALD'S, as well as home freezers with 6 cubic foot capacity. There's an excellent bargain at McDONALD'S in a portable and most efficient barbecue pit.

LA RIBERA'S beautiful DINING ROOM becomes even more pleasing in the glow of candlelight in the evening and the traditionally excellent food served at LA RIBERA tastes even better when served against a background of music, an excellent specific for good digestion. Thor Hellum is rejoicing in several new albums from the Wishing Wells Music Shop—among which are some recordings by Rubenstein. THE DINING ROOM of LA RIBERA is open seven days a week—three meals a day, so whenever you think of dining, breakfasting or lunching out, think of LA RIBERA.

When the geese fly northward seems about the time clubs and organizations plan annual dinners, and if you're planning an annual dinner—or just a party—you might do well to call George Gaskin at the CASA MUNRAS HOTEL in Monterey. In the beautiful and newly decorated Merienda Room, Patio Room, Dining Room and Dining Porch, the CASA MUNRAS is equipped to handle any sort of party, in any sort of setting, of any size from ten people to one hundred and fifty. The Patio Room lends itself beautifully to private parties and beautiful wedding receptions have been given there. Be a delighted guest at your party and let the CASA MUNRAS worry about details.

If you think there's been nothing new in writing implements since the invention of the fountain pen you're wrong, for writing with one of the new ball pens at the DOLORES PHARMACY makes ordinary writing seem like stone-cutting. THE DOLORES PHAR-MACY has a large stock of pens and pencils by Eversharp, Shaeffer and Waterman, but the ball point Eversharp CA (for capillary action) Pen is the ne plus ultra and the ultima thule of writing equipment. No scratch, no blot mars its action, and it flows along sweetly at any pressure. You can even make numerous carbon copies with it—and, just in case, it will write under water.

For a fish dish or a pizza in an elegant setting think of ANGELO'S on Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey. The opening of the crab season is the good news. ANGELO'S lately. Now you can have a crab cocktail or Crab a la Devil, a special ANGELO dish. Lobster is to be had too, in Thermidor, Newberg or broiled fashion. We'd like all three, and then an anchovy pizza with a glass of red wine. ANGELO'S is open every day, except Monday, from eleven in the morning until nine at night. Shall we have a fish dish and a glass of white wine about ANGELO'S fire place?

Hi Chatter...

By MARY GREGORY

Last Thursday the Student Council was guests of the Salinas Union High School's student council. The occasion was a luncheon; the purpose was to create a better friendship between the schools and to share ideas on student government and the affair was a huge success. Carmel students present were Jim Snively, Perry Brown, Mary Gregory, Susan Moore, Joanne Gorham, "Ginger" Klein, Bob Barry, Richard Templeman, Victor Harber, and Bob Bell.

A tea at the home of Joanne Gorham was given by the Leaders club Tuesday honoring its new members, Peggy Riker, "Ginger" Klein, and Barbara Stoney. Outstanding students are chosen as members. All junior and senior girls who have attended Carmel High for at least a term, have a B or better average scholastically, have held one elected student body office or two class or club offices, have served on various service committees and been members of clubs, and have 300 points in G. A. A. are eligible for this club. Officers elected at the tea are Sue Kekker, president, Joanne Gorham, vice-president and historian; Carmelita Fortier, secretary-treasurer. Members: Lorraine Harris, Joan Carr, Pat Bacon and Mary Gregory.

In case you've wondered, it is members of Mr. Leon Minear's Radio club who are responsible for the scoreboard's scoring during football games. They also take care of the public address system and the projection equipment at school. The first project of the 25 members of this ambitious club was to learn the Morse code, which they did with surprising rapidity. The boys hope some day to have a radio station with its own call number, which will give them an opportunity to contact almost every nation of the world by two-way communication.

The California Scholarship Federation had its first meeting last week when it elected John Blinks, president, Rod Dewar, vice-president, and Mat Schmutz, secretary. Membership in C. S. F. is determined by scholarship. Basil Allaire, Bob Barry, Margot Boise, George Childers, Sue Dekker, "Ginger" Klein, Susan Moore, Peggy Riker, Roberta Roberts, Kathie von Meier, Joan Harrington, and Mary Gregory are those who qualify.

Last Saturday night the Rally club gave a very successful after-the-game dance. The dance committee, headed by Jennifer Lloyd, used football as its theme for the decorations. The club is also giving a bon-fire rally tonight at the high school in preparation for the big game Monday against Pacific Grove, after which the sophomore class is sponsoring a Sadie Hawkins dance.

In July, 1932, the city council decided Chief of Police Gus Englund would have to start riding his horse again, in order to prevent an uprising of Carmel residents. Seems they missed the horse. Gus had let his horse out to pasture when city salaries were cut.

trol officer, is sending out ten agents, principally to the San Francisco, peninsula and Monterey peninsula areas, who are to go around to the bars and list the equipment, cooks, waitresses and bartenders; make an inventory of the food, inspect the menu and see whether items on it are available, and even count the number of eating and drinking customers.

Although the state liquor law has always stated that hot meals must be served where liquor is being sold, it has never been enforced until now, when a test case, originating with a member of the Prohibition party in Los Angeles, finally reached the Supreme Court after three years of litigation, and the ruling was given that the law must be carried out.

Monterey peninsula bars are making efforts to conform with the law, although it works a hardship on small bars in many cases, where they lack the room to expand.

The law reads that they must have a restaurant set up, consisting of a plate, a stove, a refrigerator, hot food and a menu. Every item on the menu has to be there. Hot food doesn't mean hot sandwiches, it means hot meals, Mr. Batchelder, local representative of the Board of Equalization, explained. Bars will have to display a restaurant sign outside, and food must be served at all times rather than just at meal times, so long as liquor is being sold.

Batchelder pointed out that the marriage of bars to restaurants adds to the difficulty of enforcement of the no-liquor-to-minors

DEL MONTE SPECIAL CHANGES SCHEDULE

All the Carmelites who have been arriving in Monterey gummy eyed with sleep at 7:50 to catch the train to the City will now have to arrive in Monterey in a state of unconsciousness.

New running schedule of the Del Monte Special, as announced yesterday, becoming effective November 11:

Leave Monterey 7:35 a. m. Arrive in S. F. 10:35 a. m. (Same day!)

law. As long as bars are restaurants in the eyes of the law, minors have free access to them. "If bars could be divorced completely from restaurants, then we could put up a 'no minors allowed on these premises sign' and keep kids out of the buildings entirely."

Blanche Wagstaff Visits Son Here

Arriving tomorrow to spend the winter at the Pine Inn, is Blanche Shoemaker Wagstaff (Mrs. Donald Carr), one of America's best loved poets who will visit her son, Alfred Wagstaff, one of the owners with Dick Collins of the Pebble Beach Stables. Mrs. Wagstaff, who appears in more than a dozen of the leading poetry anthologies, was the winner in 1928 of the International Poetry Prize from among six hundred entries from all over the world with her poem, Mortality. Besides publishing over ten books of poems, she is a playwright of distinction and among her plays was an adaptation of Alceste, which Charles Coburn played at the Hudson Theater in New York for over a year. Mrs. Wagstaff's latest book, The Beloved Son, the life story of Jesus for children in rhymed couplets, has received critical acclaim and was recently translated into Italian, German and Hungarian. Among those who have praised her work was the late George Sterling, dean of Carmel poets, who said, "Her lyrics are among the most beautiful in the English language." At present, Mrs. Wagstaff is active on the board of reviewers of the new magazine, World of Books, and is completing and editing a retrospective collection of her verse.

Council Groans At Over-Loaded November Agenda

spector, members of the audience all had suggestions to offer at the top of their voices for minor changes here and there in the infant ordinance, preparing for birth.

The council had a full house again Wednesday night when Edward Kuster's neighbors flocked in to see that Kuster didn't phenagle in an extra lot in the parcel of Playhouse property the council is reclassifying for him from residence to a specially created theater zone. Four lots were originally included in the petition. After machinery got under way for the rezoning proceedings, Kuster purchased a fifth lot and asked to have it included.

Among the protestants were Amy Campbell, Clara Kellogg, and E. A. H. Watson. They wanted to know what Kuster intended to do with the fifth lot. Kuster said he wanted to move the Green Room onto it some time in the future and establish a children's theater there. The protestants said a children's theater would add to the noise and confusion of traffic that already exists there because of the Playhouse. Ida Hanke, speaking for Kuster, said she lived next door to the Playhouse and can testify that one gets used to the noise, which is always over by eleven o'clock anyway.

Council talked it over and finally decided that Kuster had better settle for four lots, which he said he was willing enough to do. If and when he gets ready to move the Green Room and start a children's theater he can start proceedings to have that fifth lot rezoned, said the council. Maybe the neighbors won't mind then.

Other business was concerned with transfer of business licenses to which the council said yes, and requests for tree trimmings or removals to which the council said no.
